25. (a) The Secretary General of the Knesset shall publish, no later than the last sitting day of the week, the list of topics on the Knesset agenda.

(b) The Speaker of the Knesset shall set the detailed weekly agenda of the Knesset at the beginning of each week, in accordance with the provisions of this article, and shall present it at the weekly meeting of the Knesset Presidium. The Secretary General of the Knesset shall publish the agenda that was set, after the meeting of the Presidium.

(c) The agenda of the Knesset sittings shall begin with the following: on Monday – motions to express no-confidence in the Government, should they have been tabled; on Tuesday – one minute speeches; and on Wednesday - replies to urgent questions.

(d) (1) The Speaker of the Knesset shall set the agenda of the Knesset so that the sittings of the Knesset on Mondays and Tuesdays shall be devoted to debates on Government motions and debates on private members' bills of Knesset Members on first reading, on second reading, and on third reading, and the sitting of the Knesset on Wednesday shall be devoted to debating private members bills brought for preliminary reading and motions for the agenda. Replies to questions may be given at any one of the Knesset sittings.

(2) Despite what is said in paragraph (1), the Speaker of the Knesset is entitled to place on the agenda of the Knesset a debate on private members' bills as stated in that paragraph, on Monday and Tuesday, and a debate at the request of the Government on Wednesday, as long as the topic that was placed as stated on the agenda shall be debated after the topics that were set for debate on the basis of paragraph (1), and a notice in this sense shall be submitted to the Knesset Members before the beginning of the debate on it.

(e) The Speaker of the Knesset is entitled to set an agenda that diverges from the provisions of clauses (c) and (d), when this is what the circumstances require, including in weeks in which three regular sitting of the Knesset do not take place, in a week in which the Knesset debates the annual Budget Bill or the accompanying Bills, and in the last week of the Knesset sessions.

26. The Secretary General of the Knesset or a deputy to the Secretary General shall submit to the Knesset, in the course of its sitting, a notice regarding the documents that have been laid on the Knesset tabled.
